Early Christmas dinner for Red Squirrel. December 12, 2021. Photo courtesy of Sue Cseh-Galbraith. Did you know? BC has four species of tree squirrels. They feed on seeds, nuts, acorns, tree buds, berries, leaves and twigs. Squirrels gather and store food for later. They help plant distribution by gathering and planting acorns and nuts. People may think they're helping squirrels by feeding them, but squirrels can easily find food on their own, even in town. Feeding squirrels may increase their chance of injury or death.

dear readers,

I hope this finds you well as can be in these difficult times.

Yet another extraordinary year has come to an end, with big changes for everyone. We are reminded to be more thankful and stand in gratitude towards those who have faced greater challenges, taken bigger risks and made a bigger difference.

Let's look ahead with optimism and hope, trusting the New Year will bring good things to us all.

The photos submitted this month are spectacular and will definitely lift your spirits, as they have mine. All of our photos are submitted by readers, including Sammie Hoffman whose May cover photo is the Favourite Cover of the Year, as voted in the annual Reader's Choice Awards.

For the first time in 5 years, pet pics is in second place for Favourite Feature. We congratulate and thank Dr. Davidicus Wong for his insightful and very readable Healthwise Column and Favourite Feature, as voted by readers. See page 21.

According to nearly 500 readers who voted this year, Healthwise, pet pics and Alice's puzzle pages are the favourite features in the paper. Keep sending in your pet pics and thank you very much to our anonymous sponsor for providing the quality puzzles. See page 13 for super cute pets and see the centrefold for this years Reader's Choice winners.

Rants & Raves

ALL RANTS are the opinion of the individual and do not reflect the opinions of THE WESTSIDE POST. The editor reserves the right to edit for good taste and otherwise, for clarity, brevity, so please keep it short and [bitter] sweet.

Did you know that Okanagan Lake is one of the largest but also one of the shallowest lakes in the province? As such, when we get a cold snap like this week the cold/dry air flows over the relatively warm/wet lake and evaporation will form cloud over the open water. December 27, 2021. Photos courtesy of Sue Cseh-Galbraith.

RAVE 🐾 Thank you very much for taking the time and trouble to send in your comments. I read them all and they truly make my day. Katherine & Miss Betty Here's a few from the last month: Thanks for The Westside Post, which you managed to pivot and keep going throughout the wildfire turmoil.

Thank you for all you do for the community. It wouldn't be the same without you.

Thank you for all you do for us all year long. We love the support and dedication you steadfastly provide and you know how much we LOVE The 'Post. Keep up the GREAT work, the wonderful spirit and snuggle Miss Betty and Lizzie for us. Here's to a much calmer peaceful 2022!

RANT >> none received.

WHAT'S ON YOUR MIND?
westsidepost@icloud.com

Colour of the Year

Colour of the Year 2022: Very Peri

Every year, a colour is chosen as Colour of the Year. This year Very Peri was chosen and is featured in the masthead on our cover.

What is a Pantone colour and why do we use them?

When people talk about Pantone colours, usually they're referring to a colour specified in the Pantone Matching System, a proprietary, standardized colour system used to describe colours by an allocated number (eg "PMS 125"). Just like sample colour chips at the paint store but for print and computer display matching instead of your walls.

The Westside Post chooses a vibrant new Pantone colour every month so it's easy to identify a new issue. A big company like, say, McDonald's, uses a Pantone colour so that the yellow in their "golden M" is always the exact same.

THE FIRE

Where did the undergrowth go, did it perish in the fire of 2021?

We had lots of tiny flowers, red and blue, dandelions galore throughout the forest floor.

It's all charcoal now and empty and dark, the trees are burnt, pine needles too.

When you look down and see the ground below there is no grass or even a weed, then with each gust of wind more pine needles blanket the ground. No birds to sing, it's too quiet now.

So many homes, possessions, cars and trucks, were incinerated on that August night.

We all feel the sorrow, pain and anger it's caused, such a great loss to Killiney, Estamont and OKIB too, at least no human lives were lost. Our Little Kingdom perished along with the gas bar, no more bakery treats for a long time that's for sure!

Our fruit and vegetable gardens withered in that heat, along with sentimental treasures and items we thought we could keep.

We will get through this, you'll see! It takes patience, perseverance and we are a strong community.

So don't give up, it takes time to rebuild, the birds will return in the Spring, along with daffodils.

Please show kindness and love my friend and just remember this, that 2022 will bring healing and peace.

[submitted by longtime resident Karen Morris with good wishes to all, and may this poem brighten your spirits]

Crime Stoppers 35th anniversary serving the Central Okanagan

In 1987, a group of community minded residents came together to bring the global crime-fighting program to our region. Their vision: to see citizens with information on criminal activity come forward in a totally anonymous manner to help police solve crimes, making the community safer.

impressive statistics

- received over 30,400 anonymous tips
 - almost 3,000 arrests
 - cleared almost 4,000 cases
1. recovered close to $100M in cash, weapons, stolen property and drugs

Crime Stoppers is a unique partnership involving the media which publicizes unsolved crimes – citizens provide anonymous tips (1.800.222.8477) that can help RCMP investigations resulting in charges and arrests.

In the Central Okanagan, volunteers serve on the Board of the non-profit Crime Stoppers Society which helps raise funds to pay rewards.

The RDCO provides staff and office space to coordinate the program, working to publicize crimes and receive anonymous tip information for police.

Governance and Services Study

The blueprint that will guide the Governance and Services Study for North Westside communities has been approved by the RDCO Board.

The Terms of Reference was developed by the Ministry of Municipal Affairs which provided $60K to the RDCO to undertake the study.

While not an incorporation study, the Ministry says the Governance and Services Study will build on the findings of the 2017 North Westside Services and Community Issues Review.

It's anticipated that an experienced, independent consultant will work with a study committee to engage with the North Westside communities, identifying issues and concerns and possible options to address them within the governance framework.

On the recommendation of Central Okanagan West Director Wayne Carson, it's hoped the Regional Board will approve committee membership in early January.

The study is expected to present a final report by Sept. 30, 2022. Information about the study will be available at: rdco.com/nwcommittee

RDCO Financial Plan

Work is underway as the Regional District prepares its annual budget and 5-year Financial Plan.

As we move closer to the first presentation of the preliminary 2022-2026 Financial Plan to the Regional Board at its February 17 meeting, information will be available at: rdco.com/budget

This is where you will find links to the latest budget documents and an opportunity to provide email feedback to the Board.

In person opportunities to comment to the Board remain unavailable due to public health regulations.

Any email feedback received by March 1 will be provided at either the February 17 or March 10 meetings. Each meeting begins at 8:30 am.

All Board meetings may be viewed once they begin with a link to the livestream at: rdco.com/agenda

If you're unable to view the meeting as it happens, a recording is also available usually within a day.

Energy Step Code survey

A short, online survey is available to help the Regional District gauge awareness about the BC Energy Step Code.

Anyone considering a new construction project in the Central Okanagan East and Central Okanagan West electoral areas is encouraged to complete a short online questionnaire.

The survey link and information about the Energy Step Code program and rebates is available at: rdco.com/building

The information received will help the RDCO offer educational programs and tools for residents and the construction sector as it moves toward implementing the Step Code.

The BC Energy Step Code encourages graduated levels of measurable energy efficiency requirements for new construction. It's being adopted by many local governments to help achieve the Provincial government goal of net zero energy ready buildings by 2032.

RDCO Board meeting highlights: from December 6

Governance & Services Study

The Board approved the Ministry of Municipal Affairs Terms of Reference to guide a governance and services study for Central Okanagan West with an emphasis on North Westside communities.

A Request for Proposal will be developed to contract an experienced, independent consultant to help the committee facilitate community involvement and provide a completed report by the end of September 2022.

The Ministry has provided a $60K grant to fund this work. See page 9 and 12 for additional details.

Biomass inventory study

The Board has received an update on a high-level Okanagan valley-wide study into biomass inventories and management. Biomass is plant or animal material in the waste stream that can be used as fuel or to generate energy. Funded by the RDCO and Okanagan Sustainability Leadership Council, the Biomass Inventory Study indicates significant quantities of plant or animal waste are generated from growing industry sectors and local governments. Further research will be needed to determine whether better management and the use of biomass materials would support greenhouse gas emission reductions through renewable natural gas production and other potential bioproducts.

Financial Plan guidelines adopted

The Regional Board has approved guidelines that along with its Strategic Priorities will be used by staff to develop the 2022-2026 Financial Plan. The guidelines establish how management will address:

- core service levels
 - new programs and services
 - inflation adjustments
1. increases in market costs in developing the RDCO budget

See page 9 for more details.

Happy New Year! Here's hoping 2022 works out better for all of us!

As we head into the New Year the RDCO will be working on forming a Governance Committee for the North Westside. There will be public information opportunities and advertising for interested residents to apply for a position on the committee. The committee will explore governance options that may be better suited to addressing the concerns expressed in the 2017 Services & Issues Review and community town forum meetings. If you would like to serve your community and are willing to make a time commitment please watch for this announcement and apply as directed. Information will be posted on the RDCO web site, through the NWCA, in this paper and on my website at: waynecarson.ca

Road conditions are always an issue with residents, especially in winter. The roads are the responsibility of the Province in electoral areas, not the RDCO – this is different than “in town” where municipalities are responsible for their own local roads. In the North Westside our roads are the responsibility of the Ministry of Transportation and Infrastructure (MOTI) Vernon Office and the contract is with AIM Roads out of the North Okanagan Regional District (NORD). The rest of the electoral areas within Central Okanagan West

(and East) are the responsibility of the Kelowna MOTI Office and is covered by AIM but a total separate contract, management, equipment and operators than the North Westside.

This has been an ongoing problem for years. The RDCO is our governing body but has no working relationship or contacts with the people that are responsible for both Westside Road (Caesars Landing North to Vernon) as well as all the interior roads in North Westside and OKIB – that is discussed at the NORD Board table.

The RDCO has announced a new acting fire chief for the North Westside Fire/Rescue Department. Captain Nic Cantryn has been promoted to the role of acting chief after Alex Van Bruksvoort was released from the fire chief position through a mutual agreement with the RDCO during his probationary period. I would like to thank Alex for his time serving our community and wish him success with future endeavours. Congratulations and all the best in 2022 to Chief Nic Cantryn and the entire NWFR crew!

*Wishing you a

your local history: first rink curling team

The love of curling was one of the many things James Cameron Dun-Waters brought to Fintry from his native Scotland.

The winter of his wife Alice's death, Dun-Waters began spending less time on hunting expeditions. Instead, he took up curling – a sport he'd enjoyed in Scotland.

He built his first rink at Burnside in 1924 by blocking off the mouth of Shorts' Creek and diverting water onto a level spot of ground.

The next year a proper two-sheet rink was built behind the barns near the blacksmith shop. It was roofed and had electric lights for curling well into the evening. All the men working at Fintry were, or quickly became, keen ice curlers. Dun-Waters was an avid curler and story has it he asked any new men being hired if "they had any skill with the broom."

Art Harrop remembers, "That's where I learned to curl. When we used to go out, I was the lead and had to do all the sweeping. Geordie Stuart was 3rd, Angus (Gray) was 2nd. If we travelled to a bonspiel we were compensated at full wages and equal time off – Dun-Waters took the game seriously."

Fintry had a Home team and an Away team. Over many years, Dun-Waters would take his team to curling matches throughout the valley, challenging locals with his travelling rink. The competitive circuit included Vernon, Armstrong, Salmon Arm, Enderby, Revelstoke, Kelowna and sometimes Penticton. Dun-Waters helped form the Armstrong Curling Club and presided at the official opening February 10, 1931. He participated in every Canadian Pacific curling bonspiel in Vancouver from 1932 until his death and was named Honorary Life Member of the Vancouver Curling Club.

It was at a curling practice that Angus Gray pinned the nickname Laird on Dun-Waters. One winter day, the men were waiting at the rink for Dun-Waters to arrive in his usual Scottish tam and tweed breeches. Gray watched while Dun-Waters strolled over and then paused to enjoy the view. It struck Gray that he looked like an old-time Scottish Laird surveying his property, and he called out "Aye lads, here comes the Laird of Fintry". The nickname stuck.

At the Fintry Estate, we have a number of Dun-Waters' curling items in the collections – his rocks, numerous photographs and the certificate of his Honorary Life Membership in the Vancouver Curling Club. A curling trophy, now at the Vernon Curling Club, was presented to Dun-Waters on the occasion of his marriage in 1888 by his home club – the Scottish Fintry Curling Club.

Dun-Waters in turn presented and donated curling trophies locally, including the Challenge Cup, which stayed with each winning team.

healthwise: how the pandemic has strained our relationships

by reader request, popular Healthwise column by Davidicus Wong MD

This is the season most families and friends gather to celebrate their relationships and hopes for the New Year.

But for many of us, it is a stressful and sad time, missing loved ones who are no longer with us.

2021 has been especially devastating for those who have survived the serial disasters of the pandemic, heat wave, wild fires and floods and lost family and friends.

And more than in any other year, these holiday gatherings are sure to bring more than the usual seasonal mixture of emotions.

When I encounter difficult people, I remind myself that I only have to interact with them for a short time, and when someone is especially prickly, I recognize that their behaviour comes from a place of suffering; those who live with them are suffering!

But what if that prickly person is a coworker or relative? What can you do to not only survive but get along and not engage in an argument day after day in the workplace or hours on end at holiday gatherings.

Diverse opinions on vaccinations, masking and other public health measures have polarized many families. These have been added to the usual touchy topics of sex, politics and religion we tend to sidestep to avoid conflict at social events.

However, they are topics we can't avoid. Individuals vary greatly in their levels of safety and comfort, and we ought to ensure that when we gather, we respect not only others' opinions but their need to feel safe.

So, if you are planning to attend the first holiday gatherings during this pandemic, you have a right to know who is fully vaccinated and that no one attending has had recent exposure or possible symptoms of covid.

Here are a few practical perspectives to move conversations toward dialogue rather than arguments:

1. Though we live in the same world, we see it in unique ways. We have individual world views – mental frameworks with core beliefs about how the world works. Much of the time, even with coworkers, classmates, friends and relatives, we assume they are seeing the world the same way and are surprised at their take on a situation and how they make decisions.
2. People can change their core beliefs over time based on their unique experiences. This can happen unconsciously.
3. Most of us have a habitual way of relating to others we have known a long time. We don't recognize how their individual beliefs have evolved over time. We might recognize this growth mindset in ourselves as we learn from experience, but we continue to fall into stereotypical patterns of behaviour when interacting with others based on a simplified unchanging caricature of who they are. This often leads to the same old arguments at family gatherings.
4. In our conversations, we ought to listen to understand what the other is feeling and thinking. Listening only to think about what you are going to say next leads to the other feeling unheard – and ultimately ill will and disagreement.

Dr. Davidicus Wong is a family physician. His Healthwise column appears regularly in this paper. For more on achieving your positive potential in health, read his blog: davidicuswong.wordpress.com

5. The ancient Greek and Roman Stoics used Negative Visualization to appreciate what we have – including our friends and relatives. Imagine if through illness or disaster they were no longer part of your life. How would you feel? How does this inform how you now respond to them?

We might recognize this growth mindset in ourselves as we learn from experience, but we continue to fall into stereotypical patterns of behaviour when interacting with others ...

Happy New Year!

Cheers to a far less dramatic and traumatizing 2022. Here is a snapshot of the current activity in the North and Central Okanagan. Main points: inventory and days on market are down, meaning there is less to buy and what is on the market, is selling faster. This has affected the sales volume for both districts. This typically is a slower time of year.

Please keep in mind these numbers encompass all types of properties, from lots to waterfront and everything in between. Latest stats include both Central and North Okanagan, as at end of November 2021 (the most recent available):

Inventory: down 38% in Central Okanagan and 34% for the North

Days on market: down 42% for Central Okanagan and 37% for the North

Sales Volume for this year – Central Okanagan $499,756,270 up 6%

this time last year	$470,922,271
units listed	this year: 653 – down < 1%
	last year: 658
units sold	this year: 592 – down 14%
	last year: 692

Sales Volume for this year – North Okanagan $150,392,799 up 32%

this time last year	$114,369,142
units listed	this year: 222 – up 14%
	last year: 194
units sold	this year: 229 – up 7%
	last year: 215

Wishing you and yours Happy New Year and all the best in 2022.

about Sudoku

Sudoku is the Japanese word combining "number" and "single". Its origin stems from an 18th century game by a Swiss mathematician. His game was named Latin Squares. This is truly an international game.

Sudoku Daily is a puzzle that uses numbers instead of words. It's a grid of 81 squares, divided into nine blocks of nine squares each. Some of the squares contain a digit. The goal is to fill in the empty squares so that the digits 1 through 9 appear just once in every row, column and individual block.

Complete the grid so that every row, column and 3x3 box contains every digit from 1 to 9 inclusive.

The aficionados of modern-day Sudoku are keen to point out that it is not a mathematical problem. Logic is what's required.

Good Luck!
